In accordance to determined norms of demographic and statistical techniques, the enumeration of the population was successfully. A series of data and important statistical information were collected, that made possible some opportunities of its effective utilization.

Population Characteristics

A: Demographic characteristics of the city population:

1. Population size

It is considered one of the important demographic indicators that is used during implementation of social-economic developing plans in a certain geographical area. According to obtained in formation of Kabul City population expresses that children aged <15 years form more than half of the city population. Adults are forming the rest of the population, in which the number of the female is bigger then male.

- Sex composition of population

According to the survey sex composition of the population shows that the ratio of male to female has been descended than 1985/6. Presently, about 99 men stand for 100 women. It is just because of men casualties than women in the city. The calculation of sex ratio mainly, has been contented to those data, which have directly been collected from families.

- Age composition of population

Age is one of very important demographic indicator and also it is much more emphasized.

Even though collecting information about sex, because of various reasons could possibly have errors. Such errors are common in all over the world enumeration and that is because of mainly non presenting accurate age of people by their members of families, but by use of methodical techniques these errors have been gone minimum.

The matter, which is known from the survey, population with age under 15 has been taken bigger percentage. It is introducing the city as a young aged population residential area. (See related table)

- Widows/orphans composition of population

Knowing population from viewpoint of marital status could go under the study of social demography, which is very important commonly. In this case people could be single, married, widow and divorce.

In this census for bringing facilities in planning and performing of humanitarian programmes by the IEA, local and foreign organizations, data are collected about women widows and their skills and also, about their number of children only.

Due to international criteria, the information about widows has commonly been into account from age 15 and over. With looking at results of census, it becomes known that 4% of women are mostly their own family's leaders.

For further information refer to related table.

- Population Growth

Births, death and emigrations affect population size very much. Population growth will be available due to vital events recording and emigration data. Population growth is considered as one of very important planning and social-economic activity indicators. In the present survey the data about displacements/emigration and repatriations have mainly been taken into account. Collecting data about births and deaths haven't been enumerated. This information, which aimed procuring facilities to displaced and returnee families in the city, has been undertaken in the survey. So the calculation of population growth, which shows more than 2% annual growth rate was done according to demographic techniques and manners.

In this survey family is accepted as a single unit of enumeration according to determined criteria. A family is a collection of one or more than one individual that live together and has shared expenses. Obtained information are directly collected from the members of families that indicated the average of family number more then 6 person.

- Returnee and displaced families

As it was understood from the present survey, Kabul City settled population, because of different circumstantial reasons faced non-natural displacements. The collected data indicates that more than half of the city population is formed by displaced and returnee.

- Period of residence

The population data based on the period of residence, valid from one month to over five years, are collected in the way that it contains constant, displaced and returnee families. Of course the category of over five years residence presents mainly the constant population.

- Registered and unregistered houses

Obtained information indicates that registered houses, which are built according to the Master Plan of the city, are more than unregistered (houses without having permission from the city municipality or which are not built according to the city master plan). Most of registered houses are located in districts 15, 11, 9 and 4 respectively. While, most of the unregistered houses are located in districts 1, 6, 7 and 16. (See related tables)

Preface

Demographic and statistical data are consisting of size, distribution composition, growth tendency and socioeconomic characteristics of population. These data are based on methodical basics, which can be used for creation facilities in performing programmes such as humanitarian assistance, emergency, administrative works and development activities. Therefore we can not expect effective results from the emergency and developing plans without accurate statistics data in different areas.

By earning acceptance of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan authorities, Central Statistics Office (CSO), with co-operation of UNOCHA/UNRCO-Kabul, was recently able to perform a survey of Kabul City population after 13 years, that is going to meet some needs of planning departments of the IEA and UN agencies and NGOs for their assistance and activities in the city.

Introduction

Since all related activities of collection, classification, analysis assessment and publication of demographic information of the city are done based on fixed statistical manners. Due population enumeration of Kabul City is preformed by districts and by gozars (sub-districts) for the first time. Therefore, it won't be useless to have a view on geographical location and physical structure of the city.

Topographic structure of Kabul City

Kabul City, the capital of Afghanistan is located between 68°-58'-22" Eastern longitude and 34°-25'-37" Northern Latitude. Its altitude from the sea surface is 1800 m.

Kabul has a balanced climate and is surrounded by range of high mountains (Zanburak, Sherdarwaza and Asmayi), plains and hills. Kabul River (Chamchamast) originates from the flowing rivers of Maydan-Wardak and Onai Valley of Paghman region. All those have been added to the natural greenness and beauty of the city.

Kabul is bounded the north by Pacha Saheb mountains, the south by Char Asyab region and Korough mountains, the east by Tong-e-Gharo and the west by Paghman region.

Nevertheless according to Municipality's plan, Kabul City is divided into 16 districts that 14 districts among them are almost having residential facilities.

All administrative and socio-economic establishments, like ministries offices, governmental departments, shared and private companies and commercial centers and international organization are partly active.

Since the most areas of social services such as transportation and communication establishments, water supplies, electricity sections, health and education services are destroyed due to distractive war, which cannot meet the needs of urban population. Therefore, they demand to be rehabilitated and reconstructed.

This population information for the city was collected based on districts and sub-districts (Gozar). Districts 12, 15 and 16 were newly formed. The district 12 contains Arzan Qimat residential area and some rural areas. The district 15 was parted from district 11. The district 16 contains some parts of the old district 9 and rural areas. As a result of this enumeration, the city consists of totally 14 districts, (322) Gozers and 120,539 houses. (See attached data tables).

History of census in Kabul City

However in the country the population enumeration doesn't have a long background, but for the first time an enumeration of the city population took place in 1965-66 under the name of Great Kabul Enumeration by the Ministry of Planning with the cooperation of the Ministry of Education.

It merely contained 10 existed city districts that it had showed male 243.6 thousands, female 191.6 thousands and totally 435.2 thousands of the city population.

For the 2nd time the enumeration of Kabul City was done in 1979. It had been done by Central Statistics Office with the technical/financial co-operation of the United Nations. It had shown male 488.0 thousands, female 443.0 thousands, totally 931.0 thousands of individuals. The survey covered all 11 districts of the city.

The 3rd Kabul Population survey, which covered 11 districts, took place in 1985-86. According to the survey the city districts population contained male 663.3 thousands, female 638.0 thousands and totally 1301.3 thousands of individuals.

This population survey was done in 1999/2000. The Central Statistics Office CSO and the Afghanistan Computer Center ACC with financial and technical support by UNOCHA and UNRCO- Kabul, implemented the survey for all 14-city districts. The survey is showing male 888.2 thousands, female 892.8 thousands and totally 1781.0 thousand populations for the city. (see attached data tables)

Background of the survey

In addition to the physical destruction wrought on the city of Kabul during recent years, the human cost has been great. Significant numbers of the urban population have at times been forced out of the city or internally displaced between districts, in search of security or livelihoods. Elsewhere, families have moved in to the city from peri-urban areas in search of assistance. In the face of these upheavals, the demography of the city appears to have changed significantly, with obvious implications for those providing assistance to urban communities.

While there have been regular assistance-centered service of the urban population over recent years, with a degree of duplication, official baseline information (such as the 1985/6 estimated population) relies at best on projections from previous censuses implemented by the Central Statistics Office, or specific surveys carried out by the various line ministries. There was, in this context, a need to commission an authoritative survey, that would enjoy official endorsement, to enable both ministries and aid organizations to more effectively addresses the needs of the urban population, and plan for future humanitarian and rehabilitation interventions.

Objectives

In less developed countries, above all in our country that vital events recording system and current statistics are out of quiet covering, while existing of update statistical information is very important for all projections of planning emergency, socio-economic and developing programs.

Due to interior emigrations and population movement inside districts and city margin in to present bounded borders in compare to earlier years the city population has been increased to a considerable extent. But in spite of expansion of urban areas, the essential facilities have stayed limited. Therefore, it demands that the concern libels should adopt necessary contrivance for solving first essential requirements of urban residence due to performing emirate-developing plans attracting humanitarian urgent helps from local and foreign organization. Of course, for solving such problems is necessary to access to accurate statistical data regarding size and other city population characteristics.

For preparation and presentation demographic accurate and recent data, census of Kabul City was preformed to provide the following aims:

- Collecting of update information about size, distribution, composition and socio-economic characteristics of Kabul City population for projection, implementation and evaluation of
